1) JOHN BORRADAILE	11 May 1675	Wigton, Cumberland, England
2) SARAH BORRADAILE	1679	Philadelphia, Pennsylvania or England
3) ARTHUR BORRADAILLE

Many have posted ARTHUR's place of birth as Kirkbridge but there is no such place in Cumbria, the successor to Cumberland; there is a Kirkbride in Cumbria. A description of the area from 1858 states: *Kirkbride is a township, small parish, and village, 6 miles north-by-east from Wigton, and 4 south from Bowness, in the Wigton union, Cumberland ward, Eastern division of the county, archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle; it is situated on the south side of the estuary of the Wampool.*¹ In the 1615 Visitation of Cumberland there is found a ROBERT BOROWDALE in Com' Comb 'land whose daughter DORATHEY was the wife of ROBERT PATRICKSONN of London Goldsmythe 1634. ROBERT was the son of ANTHONY PATRICKSONN of Stokkow & Ffressington and JANE, daughter of HENERY FLETCHER of Cockermouth.²

Given the reported appearance of the marriage and birth of some of their children in the registers of the Holme Monthly Meeting in Cumberland County, the matter seems settled. These records have the family living in Morehouse in the Burgh-upon-the-Sands parish and Kirkbride west of Carlisle from May 1675 to October 1678; in Lowerane Holme in January 1680, in Wigton Parish near Carlisle, by April 1684. Kirkbride and Morehouse are villages 5 to 10 miles west of Carlisle; Holme is some sort of district, possibly a parish, west of Carlisle Lowerane Holme has yet to be identified.

ARTHUR BORDELL is one of the witnesses to the marriage of MARY ISMAY and JOHN PEALE on 5 July 1678 at Holme Monthly Meeting.³

There is a Borradaile family in Plymouth Colony that owned significant holdings in Cork, Ireland; at this time any relationship between ARTHUR and this family is not known.

When they moved to the New World has yet to be documented. It could have been 1675 in which case their children were born in Philadelphia and the story of JANET dying at sea is not accurate; or it may have been 1685 in which case they were born in England.

The existence of a son named ARTHUR finds support in the Warrant issued to ARTHUR BORRADAL on 21 March 1701 for land in Chester County, Pennsylvania. This warrant would be acted upon by JOHN BORRADAL, the son of ARTHUR and JANET BORRADAILLE for he obtained a Patent for 500 acres, with ARTHUR'S Warrant as the basis, on 1 October 1702.⁴ The subject herein named ARTHUR had died over a decade earlier while the next person in the BORRADAILLE family to be named ARTHUR would not be born until 1706.

Administration was granted on the 8th of June 1687 to THOMAS LANGHORNE of Bucks County, yeoman, on the estate of ARTHUR BORDALE, late of said province, but formerly of Kirkbride in Cumberland in Old England. Inventory done by JOHN CORNWELL, WILLIAM WAITE, THOMAS PRIESTCOUSIN, and JOHN TAYLOR who placed a value of £91.4.10 on his personal estate. Recorded 8 June 1687. THOMAS LANGHORNE died shortly thereafter and the inventory of his estate, recorded 1 April 1688, included a few things of ARTHUR BORDALES.⁵
